

The Opening Ceremony Was Successfully Held in National Science Library, Chinese Academy of Sciences for 2019.

On August 30, 2019, the opening ceremony was successfully held in the lecture hall of National Science Library, Chinese Academy of Sciences(NSLC).

At the beginning of the ceremony, director Liu Huizhou expressed warm welcome and expectations to the new students of 2019. He pointed out that everyone should adapt to the study and life, develop good study habits, keep close communication with teachers, find their own research direction as soon as possible.

Subsequently, director Chu Jingli gave a speech on "the mastery of core competence of contemporary postgraduate" from a small survey to emphasize the students of library and information field should be confident in profession and vocation.

Then, researcher Li Ling shared some advice that students must read a lot of professional literature to cultivate the ability of independent thinking and learning. She hoped students can absorb energy during postgraduate time and become the pillars of the country in the future.

After that, the representative of PhD, postgraduate freshman and a PhD class of 2017 gave speeches respectively.

Business commissioner Han Tao traced back the history of CAS to encourage students to explore and lay a foundation for their career.

Li Guoli, the teacher of integrated office, introduced the security system and precautions for fire fighting.

Vice director of graduate education Zhang Yanqiu shared her rich experience of mental health education and the solution of psychological problem.

Director of graduate education Zhang Dongrong, graduate branch secretary Zhang Zhang introduced some departments and their work.

Finally, Liao Yu, president of student union, ended up with a call for participating activities.

