

Introduction

Dr. Li-Ping Ku (Alan Ku) is the Head of Science and Technology Information Policy Center (STIP) in the National Science Library of Chinese Academy of Sciences (NSL, CAS) and a position professor of the School of Economics and Management in the University of Chinese Academy of Sciences (UCAS). His responsibility is national STI policy research, consulting and services and his field of research and teaching is the information user and service studies.

He has published five academic monographs include "On Foresight: Sharing Future with Forwarding Policy", "Digital Library Development: Personalization, Openness and Community" and "Open Access and Information Services" etc., hundreds of research article such as "Data Level Metric: Its Concepts and Progress", "Discussion of the emotive element of knowledge service practice: An empirical study at the Chinese Academy of Sciences" and "Creating and using Personas for library service in the Web 2.0 era — a case study of the Chinese Academy of Sciences" etc., ten edited brochures include "Introduction of COAR", "Introduction of arXiv.org" and "Introduction of BASE" etc., and monthly proofreading the "newsletter of library information services". All of those publications is open access to everyone.

Alan Ku was born in 1978 in Taipei city. He completed a bachelor of mass communication in Hsinchu city, and was four years in Germany and Austria to achieve the business diploma and the master of film and television arts, made doctorate in library science at the Chinese Academy of Sciences, has a postdoctoral research on scientometrics and patentometrics at National Taiwan University, was a senior associate researcher in the City University of Hong Kong, and was the manager to promote FlySheet solution and sale Ex Libris products while he was in the company. Since 2012, he as an excellent talents from overseas services in the National Science Library CAS. He participated many times on national open access policy recommendations, organized cross-departments and cross-organizations policy research and has hold a series of policy implementation activities such as the China Open Access Week, the Chinese Institutional Repository Conference, the China Fair Use Week and the Data Librarian Workshop. Alan's Motto is " well and do, well doer, well done!".

Alan Ku's representative writing is "On Personas: Internet users information behavior and differentiated service strategy", it spends eight years and he formally introduced his academic thought by this monograph. The newest research result (July-2017) is that he and his student publishes an international conference paper with title "The open search.org in open science era: A communication platform for everyone building their repositories and using others". Alan Ku's teaching courses focus on practical operability, problem-solve model and foresight-oriented thought.