

Zhu Jiang

Male, master, research librarian, presently employed at Department of Information Service, Chengdu Library of CAS, ever employed at Computer Room, Department of Automation Research and Development, Department of Journals and Department of Documentation. Participated in cooperative study on probability-weighted information retrieval system in the Department of Information Science, the City University of London. Took part in such projects as the Chinese Patent Databases, Integrated Library Automation System, Networks of Hundreds Institutions, Online Documentation and Information Sharing System of CAS, Research and Construction of Documentation and Information Networks in Chengdu Branch of CAS, Global Library Navigation Portal, Selection of Western Language Journal and Conference Papers Funded by NSTL, Scientific and Technological Achievements Platform of CAS, NSTL Documentation Management System, Science and Technology Literature Open Access System for Key Scientific Research Institutions of Sichuan Province, Research and Construction of Open Access Conference Papers Acquisition and Service system. Won the third prize of national science and technology progress, the second prize of science and technology progress of CAS, the third prize of science and technology progress of Sichuan Province. Compiled and published 6 volumes of tool books, published more than 50 papers, one of the papers was granted the First Session Top Ten Youth Thesis Award of Chengdu Branch of CAS. Currently, taking participate in such projects as the Construction of Open Conference Resources Service System, Research and Construction of Science and Technology Information Resources Platform of Sichuan Province.

Research direction: The construction and service of information resources is one of the key research directions of the library science. The research direction will focus on the theory and research methods of information resource construction and service under the digital and network environment; new technologies, new methods and new ideas' applications in the construction and service of documentation and information resources, especially in the construction and service of open conference literature, including the theory and methods of selection, acquisition, tracking, storage, integration of open conference resources; standard and specification for information processing and application study on related information technology; comparative research, analysis and evaluation, requirement and usage evaluation of information resources; new methods of information resources construction and services based on open cooperation mode; construction, reveal and integration of open access system, institutional repository and subject repository; information services and knowledge services effectively integrated into the whole process of knowledge innovation; management, promotion and service of intellectual property rights, scientific and technological achievements, etc..