Yang Zhiping, female, master, research librarian, deputy director of the Chengdu Library and Information Center,Chinese Academy of Sciences. an evaluation expert of the national study abroad fund, the 8th Executive Director of the Sichuan Provincial Library Society, The evaluation expert of the Sichuan Provincial Senior Position Review Committee, and a member of the editorial board of the British "world patent information" Journal; a member of the 12th CPPCC Sichuan Committee, a member of the Standing Committee of the Sichuan Federation of overseas Chinese ,the 6th people's representative of Wuhou District, Chengdu. As a visiting scholar and a senior research scholar, she went to the library of Seton Hall University in the United States and the Institute of science and technology policy of Sussex University in the United Kingdom to study and exchange. For a long time, she have been committed to research and provide knowledge services for the innovation and development of natural sciences and engineering science and technology around library and information science, including subject services, precision services, intellectual property information services, knowledge environment construction, knowledge service methods and models, information literacy and science communication, etc. She has undertaken national social science fund projects and a number of provincial and ministerial research projects. She has published more than 100 academic papers and conference papers at home and abroad in the core journals and excellent journals of related disciplines. She has won the third prize of the Sichuan Provincial Science and Technology Progress Award (2002) and the third prize of the 17th Social Science Outstanding Achievement Award of Sichuan Province.

Research direction: Network Information Service Research

This research direction will focus on researching and analyzing the behaviors and needs of scientific research users in the network information environment, and research the innovative service method, path, mode and mechanism of knowledge service in the new scientific research environment in combination with new technology and methods; research the innovative development path and innovative service system of knowledge service carried out by academic libraries in the areas of collaborative innovation and integrated development; research into knowledge environment construction, intellectual property services, data management, etc. in the process of innovation and industrial development of scientific research users; the research on the method, path and service mode of Academic Library in improving the multi-element maintenance of users under the environment of network digital and social media.